TEEN ISSUES OCTOBER

Connecting With Kids 10/08/03

Early love represents all of what's exciting and magical about the teenage years but it's also the source of some of the biggest dangers. Older boys pressure young girls to have sex, sometimes causing disease, pregnancy and depression; boys pressure other boys by linking conquest to popularity; and many teen romances end with dating violence. What prepares some kids to navigate this minefield, while others make mistakes? There's a dark side to early love, and there are ways to protect your children. First comes love ... but what will come next?

TEEN ISSUES NOVEMBER

Connecting With Kids 11/12/03

The most serious health threat facing American children today is not disease, illness or malnutrition. It is risky behavior: the risk in the mirror. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the number one killer of kids is accidental injury, often caused by risky behavior. Car wrecks, falls, burns, bicycle accidents, sports injuries. The CDC says chronic risk-taking can also be dangerous—drug use, drinking, smoking, and unprotected sex.

Why do kids take chances that can hurt them? "Humans like thrill," says clinical psychologist Randall Flanery. "When you're faced with a risk, your body is activated, all those stress hormones go zooming through...and it's really kind of hard to resist." But experts say there are ways parents can help teenagers avoid unhealthy risks. One way is to help children visualize the consequences of risky behavior before they are confronted with it. "Parents and a child could set up a situation," suggests Lorien Carter, director of a teen pregnancy center. "'What would you do if this happened?' And actually practice and role-play that...so that in the heat of the moment a teen may say, 'Not right now.'"

At the same time, experts also advise that some risks are positive, and help a child grow and develop. Trying out for a role in the school play, playing sports, performing a solo, standing up for an unpopular classmate.

Dr. Jeffrey Rothweiler, a psychologist at St. Louis Children's Hospital, says parents should encourage kids not to be afraid of making mistakes. "A great deal of learning often follows a failure," Rothweiler says. "To never take a risk is, in some ways, to stunt oneself." The key for parents is to protect children, when possible, from dangerous risks, and guide them toward taking risks that are healthy and will help them grow.

Dr. Phil 12/24/03

Host: Dr. Phil McGraw

Today, role models are chosen by celebrity status. Can this growing obsession with stars and pro-athletes lead to poor character traits and values in your child? Dr. Phil discusses the need for parents to be a child's biggest hero.

Show #: 2030 Syndicator: Paramount / Kingworld

Dr. Phil 12/30/03

Host: Dr. Phil McGraw

Dr. Phil talks about parents who fuel the fire of competition. Is it about opportunity or image? Do parents push too hard? What does it take to make a child successful?

WJAC TV LOCAL NEWS: ROAD, PARKING, & OTHER TRANSPORTATION ISSUES OCTOBER

10/7/03, 11 PM, Tuesday Jen Kallin

PARKING RATE DISCUSSION

If you park in downtown State College, parking during the Christmas shopping season will be free. State College businesses were able to convince borough officials of the importance of the parking availability. The borough is planning an upcoming forum to address other parking issues, such as student parking and employee parking.

11/7/03, 5 / 6 / 11 PM, Friday Mark Allen

RURAL AIRPORTS / PAY SUBSIDY?

Commercial flights to some rural airports could be grounded under a new plan in Congress. It is buried in the massive Federal Aviation Spending Bill and could have devastating consequences for the John Murtha Johnstown Airport. The airport would be required to pay part of a government subsidy. Mark Allen reports.

NEW PARKING LOT / PHILIPSBURG

Parking is always a problem for communities with a small downtown like Philipsburg. Parking is an important draw to increase customers, so the need for additional space is crucial for business revitalization. That's why the donation of a parking lot by S & T Bank was greeted with enthusiasm in Philipsburg.
